"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: - I feel it my duty to tell all young women how much Lydia E. Pinkham's wonderful Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was completely run down, unable to attend school, and did not care for any kind of society, but now I feel like a new person, and have gained seven pounds of flesh in three months.

"I recommend it to all young women who suffer from female weakness."—Miss Alma Pratt, Holly, Mich.

FREE MEDICAL ADVICE TO YOUNG GIRLS. All young girls at this period of life are earnestly invited to write Mrs. Pinkham for advice; she has guided in a motherly way hundreds of young women; her advice is freely and cheerfully given, and her address is Lynn, Mass.

Judging from the letters she is receiving from so many young girls Mrs. Pinkham believes that our girls are often pushed altogether too near the limit of their endurance nowadays in our public schools and seminaries. Nothing is allowed to interfere with studies, the girl must be pushed to the front and graduated with honor; often physical collapse follows, and it takes years to recover the lost vitality,—often it is never recovered.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the one sure remedy to be relied upon at this important period in a young girl's life; with it she can go through with courage and safety the work she must accomplish, and fortify her physical well being so that her future life may be insured against sickness and suffering.

*************** Feeding Corneob Meal.

It is doubtful if there is any value, from a standpoint of nutrition, in corncob meal, its chief value being that when fed with the meal of the corn it prevents the impaction of the latter in the stomach of the animal, something that must be flone when large quantities of corn are fed. It is not market be bought, but if one wishes have the corn on the cob ground and then mix it with corn not ground the box. with the cob, in varying proportions until the proportion is obtained upon which the stock gives the best results. This is the only safe way of feeding it.

Good Orchard Treatment. In central New York there is a fourteen-year-old orchard that has always been managed on an exceedingly sensible and profitable plan. The branches are trained to the spreading habit which opens the tree to the air and sun. For about eight years the orchard was plowed and planted to vation like corn, beans and potatoes. Then it was seeded down with alfalfa and inoculated. This developed a very thick sod which is cut three times a year for hay. This hay is fed to stock and then the manure is all hauled back again and spread around the trees. Under this system the orchard has made a very remarkable growth.

Handling Unruly Hogs. Any one who has tried it will testify that it is not an easy task to bandle a stubborn hog, and most hogs are stulborn. If one has occasion to do this work the device shown in the cut is simple and effective. Take a strong rope about the diameter of a clothesline and about ten or twelve feet long. From this cut off three feet and tie a loop in each end; then tie the remaining piece in the centre of the looped piece and bring the loop over the snout of the hog after slipping the loops in the first piece over his hind feet. Have a ring in the long looped piece and through this slip another rope also looped so as to come over his neck, as shown in the cut. This rope may be heavier than the first one, and if the animal is unruly and strong the end which is shown over the back of the hog extending to the hand of the one who is driving it, may be slipped over his rump and into the lower loop and tied, leaving the long loop in the driver's hands for better control. The illustrations show clearly how the contrivance is constructed.-Indianapolis

Manure For Clover Lands. Considerable has been written in this department in favor of spreading the manure on the farm during the winter as fast as it is made, provided the weather will permit. Undoubtedly this method of disposing of the manure for the benefit of the crop applies to any soil that is reasonably level, but its good effects are more noticeable on clover lands than elsewhere in the experience of the writer. On every open day during the winter the manure is carried from the barn and put on the clover until such fields Lave received all needed.

The result is that the clover gets an early start and when it is to be plowed under for the corn crop, we follow clover with corn in the plan of rotation, it is two feet high and all that it has gained from the manure is turned back to the soil for the benefit of the succeeding crop. This is sensible argument, is it not? Try it and see how much greater profit is made from the manure supply.

Dairy Wisdom.

Results simply show what kind of a man is behind the cow-so look out. Cows should be fed and milked at the same time each day and in the same order. They quickly form habits, and any interruption or disappointment is quickly noticed by the lessened product in the pall.

The food of heifers must be such that it will nourish all parts of the body. They may manage to live on hay, but they will be stunted in size and will never equal their dams, though the sire may be of a line of the best butter makers. Besides that, their constitutions will be weakened. and they will be subject to every epidemic that comes around. Stretch a wire the whole length of the stable behind the cows. Attach a snap with a ring on this wire and hang the lantern in the snap. It can then be pushed along where the most light is needed. A similar wire should be placed in front of the cows. A lantern should never be placed on the floor. If accidentally overturned a disastrous fire is the inevitable result. Too much stress cannot be put upon the manner in which cows are treated F. D., No. in the stables. A cow soon comes to like, or dislike, a person who cares to them, calling them by name. They soon learn to come at call and to ex-

Ferns For the Mantel.

A pretty way for decorating the mantelpiece, or ornamental shelf, frequently adopted in the tropics, is to get a small wooden box, two feet and a half feet long and five inches wide, with the back three inches high and the front only one inch. This is filled with a mixture of rich mould and advised that the mixed product of the sand, in which are planted as many small ferns as the box will hold, says to determine for himself the value of the Chicago News. The ferns in front the mixture with his particular herd, must be planted in such a way that they fall gracefully over the edge of

When the box is placed on the mantel it makes as pretty a decoration as could possibly be devised. Softly shaded lamps and candles, shedding a dim light, make the simply furnished fern-decorated drawing room even prettler by night than by day.

Sensible Shoes.

A shoe that keeps the foot always in good condition must be first of all comfortable. The walking shoe should be an extension sole, so as to give a good base and prevent the foot from crops, which require thorough culti- being turned by irregularities in the roadway.

The toe of the walking shoe should be sufficiently broad to leave the tops of the foot absolutely uncramped, Any contraction of the leather which binds the toes, even a little, must produce not only discomfort but in the end disease. The broadly rounded toe is therefore important.

The heel should be broad and not over one inch high. Rubber is applied to the bottom of the heel, to the inside of the heel, and in the form of a pad placed inside the shoe. The principle in each of these is excellent. No one should walk on a solld heel.

The instep should be laced with diagonal lacing, instead of straight across. or in such a way as to permit the upper to fit itself to the shape of the foot freely.

The lining of the shoe plays an important part. It must be carefully put in and it must not wear out sooner than the upper of the shoe.

The upper of the shoe should be formed upon a last which represents the position of the foot when flat on the floor, not in the position of a foot when held in the air.

The sensible people have for many years dressed their feet on these lines.

Daily Life of Little Girls.

The average girl, capable of becoming an executive, well-informed woman, is born with a love for the homely, sweet and practical things of life, and it is to this wholesome, unspoiled child instinct that effort must be directed in domestic education. And the task is so much easier when the work is begun early in life, under the guise of play.

There are those who advocate beginning with the very little ones of three and four years of age, and building up, along with all their other training, a systematic course in household duties. Give them principles and rules, teach them rule and method, and while they are practicing in a small way, suited to their surroundings, be quite sure that they are doing everything in the right way. It is easier to teach the child now, and form the habit of working right, than it will be by and by to undo wrong teaching, and form new habits of doing things.

It is not at all difficult to teach the little girl in her doll housekeeping to put things in their proper places, keep them there, and to do all the things at the proper time. She may have the correct method of bousecleaning, how to give entertalument, and even the judicious management of her doll servants, if only mother knows how and has the wit and wisdom and patience and good humor to impart her knowledge in a happy, playful fashion.

Then, too, the mother can let the little girl do some real tasks, light ones, to be sure, but genuine work, making her feel sure that she is of importance because she is "helping mother," Nothing makes a girl happier than the thought that she is doing something which is really worth while and not mere play.-Mirror-Farmer.

Advertising a Town.

The marvelous growth of Seattle, Wash, is credited mainly to newspaper publicity. The business men of that community raised a considerable sum to be expended for space in Eastern newspapers, and the returns were prompt and generous.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be insurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful.
